

MOVIE TRAILER PROJECT: SETTING

Movie trailers always feature a number of different settings in which the action occurs. Look through your book and record the different settings in each chapter. Include a description of the setting including details needed when filming your trailer. Choose at least three settings which will be featured in your trailer and describe how those scenes will be filmed. Don't forget that setting includes the time period in which the story takes place. There should be some indication of the time period (ie. props, background, costumes, etc.) in your description.
